A Message from the President and CEO

Dear Friends,

On March 1, nearly 100 members of the Queens Library community filled two buses at dawn for a trip to Albany to tell the borough's state senators and assembly members in person how much they depend on Queens Library. Through their stories and conversations, our customers, supporters and staff helped our elected officials understand why they should approve more money for our libraries.

I'm delighted to report to you that it worked.

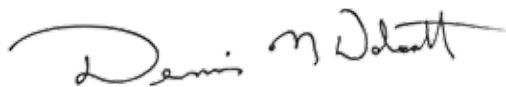

The state budget for the new fiscal year that started in April includes an additional $14 million in capital and operational funding for libraries statewide. This translates into extra dollars for our programming, resources and maintenance needs throughout our system. Our success would not have been possible had you not raised your voices.

A week after the trip to Albany, members of the Queens Library community took another trip – this time to City Hall in Manhattan to tell their elected representatives on the New York City Council to consider a proposal to add $34 million to the City's for seven-day service at more libraries and increase by $120 million the City's budget for repairs to aging buildings and equipment.

In the coming weeks, the City Council and Mayor de Blasio will decide whether to include this additional library funding in the budget. So there's plenty of time to urge them to continue to invest in the City's libraries at a time when New Yorkers need them more than ever. That's why I'd ask you to please take a few moments to send a letter in support of more public funding for libraries through this link: speakup.queenslibrary.org.

Your voices matter.

Sincerely,

Dennis M. Walcott
President and CEO

Don't Miss the Glen Oaks Spring Festival

Celebrate the return of spring with an all-day festival at Glen Oaks Community Library on Saturday, May 20! There will be activities and entertainment for all ages, and plenty of community spirit! You can learn more about the Glen Oaks Spring Festival on page 10 of this issue of Queens Library Magazine.

Share Your Poems with Us

This summer, we invite you to submit your poem to Queens Library's Summer Poetry Contest! Poets from all over New York State can send us an original work based on the 2017 Summer Reading theme of "Build a Better World." Winning poems will be published later this year in Queens Library Magazine! Learn more on page 11 of this issue.

Volunteer at Queens Library

Do you want to support your community library, help your neighborhood, or complete the hours you need for community service? Join us for a "summer of service" at Queens Library! There are a variety of available positions at the Library this summer—including Summer Reading Assistants, Summer Lunch Helpers, Library Aides, Adult Literacy Tutors, ESOL Conversation Leaders, and more! Volunteers must be age 14 and older. For more information, and to browse volunteer opportunities, visit volunteer.queenslibrary.org.

Queens Memory Wants to Hear Your Stories

The Queens Memory Program, together with the website Bliss Street Sunnyside (www.sunnysidestories.website), will host a re-telling of stories from people who lived in Sunnyside as children during the 1940s and 1950s. This event will be held on Saturday, June 3 at the Queen of Angels Church Parish Center on the corner of Skillman Avenue and 44th Street. Contributors to Bliss Street Sunnyside will discuss that time period with our guests—the people, the politics, and the ambience of Sunnyside of old. The Queens Memory team will be on hand to digitize any historic photographs of Sunnyside that people bring to the event.

In honor of the 25th anniversary of the Queens Pride Parade, Queens Memory is partnering with the La Guardia and Wagner Archives at LaGuardia Community College/CUNY, with support from the Robert David Lion Gardiner Foundation and the Queens Museum, to develop an LGBTQ oral history project. Queens Memory will interview people in their homes, at libraries, and at local LGBTQ community service organizations across the borough. The oral histories will be featured in an exhibit about LGBTQ history in Queens, which will open on June 2. For more information about both these projects, visit the Queens Memory website at queensmemory.org.

Join the Battle of the Bands

The second annual Queens Library Battle of the Bands is coming soon, and we need your band to be part of Queens' most exciting day of music. We'll be returning to the Colden Auditorium at Queens College's Kupferberg Center on July 27 for another great concert. Find out more on page 10 of this issue of Queens Library Magazine. ■

Queens Library is for Everyone

The Queens Library Everyone campaign was created as a response to the social and political tension that has affected 2017 so far.

Whether it's by celebrating diversity on the Queens

Library Immigrant Day or encouraging staff to usher in patrons for the All-Library Welcome Day, Queens Library seeks to foster an environment of inclusivity, warmth, and safety. No matter where you're from, who you love, or what you believe, Queens Library is a space for you.

"In these polarizing times, many people in the communities we serve are feeling vulnerable and excluded, and some are even facing the prospect that the dreams they're pursuing may slip away from them," said Queens Library President & CEO Dennis M. Walcott.

As an institution that provides information, opportunity, and access to all, Queens Library is committed to helping them keep those dreams within reach. That's why it's more important now than ever that we actively demonstrate that we are inclusive and welcoming.

We have launched the Queens Library Is for Everyone campaign to raise awareness, encourage all of us to engage more deeply with our customers in our daily work, and expand the impact we have on our communities.

At Queens Library, we will always strive to uphold the principles of equity, freedom, access to all, and lifelong learning. As part of the Everyone campaign, a resource fair and librarian grants program will take place, allowing all residents of Queens access to services available, and funding for librarians to create more extensive programming dedicated to inclusivity, accessibility, and information.

Equity

Queens Library provides fair and equitable access to all - no matter where you come from, who you love, or what you believe. Staff are always available to help you check out a book, sign up for job skills training, English classes, technology training, and plenty more.

Freedom

Freedom of thought, freedom of speech, and freedom of religion: Queens Library represents the freedom to be who you are without fear or discrimination. Freely use and enjoy the Library's safe spaces to learn, achieve, and strive towards your goals.

Open Access to All

Accessibility is a cornerstone of Queens Library. With 63 branches providing programs and services that are completely free, there are no barriers to education and empowerment. Plus, all of Queens Library's community branches are open at least six days a week, with seven-day service at Central and thirteen other locations - so you never have to find yourself without a place to learn, grow, and connect with others.

Lifelong Learning

It's never too late to learn. Queens Library offers educational opportunities for all ages, including Adult Literacy, High School Equivalency, English for Speakers of Other Languages, and the Job and Business Academy. Or, check out one of the 8.4 million items in the Queens Library collection. ■

Invest in Libraries — Invest in All New Yorkers!

With your help, and the support of Mayor de Blasio and the New York City Council, Queens Library had one of its best years in 2016.

We welcomed over 11.2 million customers to our libraries and held 68,000 programs for more than 1.1 million people. We circulated over 13 million materials and connected more than 477,000 people to the internet. We served 5,500 adult learners, including 1,700 students in our ESOL program and 865 customers who completed job skills training. And thanks again to the NYC Council and the Mayor, we provided Saturday service to 711,000 New Yorkers.

But the demand for library services keeps growing and growing, and in these uncertain times, Queens Library offers more than adult learning, citizenship help, and afterschool programs.

See next page to continue →

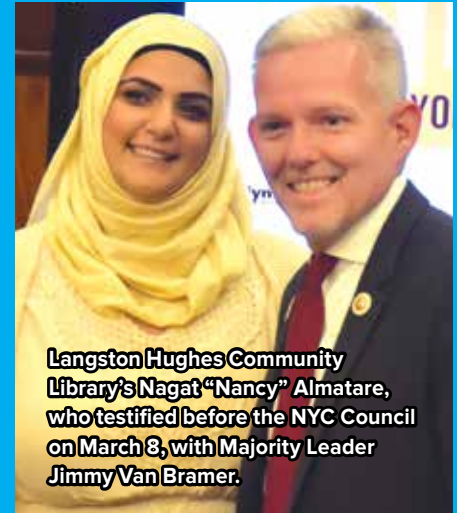

The Library also serves as a safe space where every member of our community is welcome and given the tools they need to pursue their dreams.

This year, Queens Library, the New York Public Library, and the Brooklyn Public Library are together asking for $34 million from the City to bring seven-day service to at least one library in each of the 51 council districts, including 14 in Queens. Queens Library also wants to increase our programs and resources, including more hours for the STACKS afterschool program and Google CS First computer science clubs; adding

2,000 additional mobile hotspots for our lending program; and providing translation services for our customers. All three library systems are also asking for $120 million to help us fix many of our library locations, keep them inviting and safe, and add more space to meet your needs.

Advocates like you have already started talking to our elected officials, traveling to Albany on March 1 to share their stories about Queens Library and its positive effect on their lives. On March 8, our supporters joined Queens Library President and CEO Dennis Walcott, NYC Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer, NYPL President and CEO Tony Marx, BPL President and CEO Linda Johnson, Subcommittee on Libraries Chair Andy King, and Council Members Carlos Menchaca and Mark Treyger for a press conference and rally on the steps of City Hall. Later that day, all three library presidents testified at a NYC Council budget hearing, letting the Council know that our library spaces, materials, programs, and services are more important than ever.

There will be plenty of chances for you this advocacy season to tell your elected officials to #InvestInLibraries, invest in all New Yorkers, and invest in seven-day service. You can get started by sending a message to your NYC Council Member using the contact information below. Stay tuned and visit Queens Library online and in the months to come for more opportunities to add your voice and support! ■

Advocacy 2017 — How Do I Contact My Elected Official?

Here are the key city officials who will decide the amount of funding that New York City's libraries will receive in the upcoming fiscal year. We encourage you to contact city leadership and your local Council Member, tell them how your neighborhood library benefits your community, and remind them that they need to Keep Investing in Libraries!

LGBTQ Pride at the Library

In honor of LGBTQ (Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Queer) Pride Month, Queens Library spoke with members of our staff about how they make LGBTQ customers feel welcome at Queens Library, and also asked them about their own experiences of inclusion at libraries.

Libraries were a treasured resource for me when I was young and figuring out my identity. Libraries opened my world to books and other media that gave me positive queer role models, as well as giving me the language and ideas to help me better understand who I was and who I could be as a queer person, both in orientation and gender. Not only that, I could always trust and depend on respectful and discreet help finding books and resources while living in a small conservative town. As a librarian now, I work hard to do the same thing for any/all of my patrons. I've given presentations on LGBTQ collection development to my fellow librarians; and in my previous positions, I helped expand collections of LGBTQ titles. Stories are vital to marginalized communities, and representation is important. As such, libraries providing access to these stories are equally vital.

Amy Call
Librarian, Long Island City Community Library

Last year, I started the first Teen LGBTQIA (Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer, Intersex, and Asexual) Club at Queens Library, at our Cambria Heights location. I've always had a hand in LGBTQ relations and issues, starting from when I was in high school, then going into college and being a part of my college's first Gay-Straight Alliance, and serving as a volunteer librarian at the LGBT Center in Manhattan for a few years before I started at Queens Library. It has always been important to me to support, advocate for, and learn from LGBTQ people of all ages. When I started at Cambria Heights, the first question I asked was, "Do you have any LGBTQ youth here?" When I heard the answer was yes, I immediately advocated for a club. The goal is to give teens a forum to talk in an open, non-judgmental space. Teens who are interested in joining can just come to the Cambria Heights Teen Center or call 718-528-3535 for more information.

Thomas Maxheimer

Coming from the conservative rural Midwest, hiding my sexual orientation was not optional—it could literally mean life or death. As many have done before me, migrating to a large city promised the freedom of living a fully “out” life. Twenty years later, I set about a drastic career change, got my Masters of Library Science (MLS) degree, and joined Queens Library. From day one, I have felt completely welcome and open to discuss my life—which I proudly share with my husband. The impact of this became clear to me when a frequent customer told me I was the first gay person she met who was open and unapologetic about their sexual orientation, and that she found my confidence inspiring. What this customer touched upon is, at least in part, the accepting culture of libraries. As Queens Library President and CEO Dennis Walcott puts it, libraries are truly for everyone. After all, we're all human beings and we all need and deserve access to information and resources. I have never been prouder to be part of an organization as I am at Queens Library. With every customer who comes through our doors, we get the distinct privilege to connect them with information, scholarship, entertainment, and community, without regard to who they love. In my opinion, there could be no more meaningful mission in life.

BUILD A BETTER

Get ready for Summer Reading!

This Summer Kids Can Build A Better World

It's not long before school's out, the weather's warm, and kids need activities! Yes, summer is nearly here, and Queens Library's summer programming will make sure the summer slump doesn't affect anyone once they've switched onto vacation mode.

Summer Reading

The theme of Summer Reading this year is "Build a Better World", and kids will be encouraged to read materials and participate in activities that promote literacy, engagement, and empathy. The kick-off event to launch Summer Reading will take place on June 8, at 12:30pm at the Central Library's Children's Library Discovery Center (CLDC). Activities will be available all afternoon, and several community organizations will be in attendance, including the Jump Start Literacy Organization, who will have books to give away and a read hyphen aloud session; Queens Museum, who will be running a craft workshop; Project Art, who will do art activities; and the Alley Pond Environmental Center, who will be bringing two live animals! Participants can also use their Summer Reading achievements to count towards the Read Down Your Fines program.

Summer Meals

Thirty-five community libraries will be participating in Summer Meals this year, ensuring that kids have access to free and healthy food all summer long! Summer Meals will be served from June 29 through to September 1, from 1pm to 2pm at the following libraries: Arverne, Astoria, Baisley Park, Bellerose, Briarwood, Broadway, Cambria Heights, Central (CLDC), Court Square, East Elmhurst, East Flushing, Elmhurst, Far Rockaway, Flushing, Glendale, Hollis, Laurelton, Lefferts, Lefrak City, Long Island City, McGoldrick, Ozone Park, Peninsula, Pomonok, Poppenhusen, Queens Village, Richmond Hill, Rochdale Village, Rosedale, Seaside, South Hollis, St Albans, Sunnyside, Woodhaven, and Woodside.

Poetry Contest

That's right, it's back! After a popular first run last summer, Queens Library is proud to announce that the Summer Poetry Contest is returning for a second year. Last year, we received over 300 entries across four age groups, and winners read their poems at an awards ceremony held at Flushing Library. Winning and runner-up poems were also published in Queens Library Magazine.

Like Summer Reading, the theme this year is Build a Better World, and all entries must be under 250 words. Original submissions will be accepted online and by mail between June 8 and July 31, 2017. For more information about how to enter and details about the requirements, see page 11 or visit queenslib.org/poetrycontest2017. ■

Battle of the Bands 2017

If you've been counting down the days to the next Battle of the Bands, you're in luck! It's taking place on July 27, and we need your band to be part of Queens' most exciting day of music. We'll be returning to the Colden Auditorium at Queens College's Kupferberg Center, a 2,100-seat space where you can wow the crowd with your original tracks. Last year's winners Chiv Culture are now taking Manhattan's most popular venues by storm, including Harlem favorite Silvana. Plus, you might have seen runner-up Noni Rene delivering her trademark rock 'n' soul style at Queens Library branches ever since she and her band impressed the judges with an energetic performance.

Sign your band up by May 15 for exposure, experience, and to be part of Queens' hottest musical lineup of 2017!

To sign up and get more information about the competition, visit: queenslib.org/battleofthebands2017. ■

Glen Oaks Spring Festival

play vintage board games, learn Zumba, or rock out with the band Gravity. Bring your friends, family, and meet other members of your community!

"Not quite four years ago, we had the privilege to welcome you in this new building and affirm our commitment to this community. It has been an exhilarating time for staff as well as customers who made all this possible.

We, at the Glen Oaks Community Library, wish to express our deep appreciation to all the community members, from young children to seniors, and we hope you join us and enjoy a spring festival at the library. This event is made possible with funding from the NYC Neighborhood Library Award sponsored by the Stavros Niarchos Foundation and the Charles H. Revson Foundation," Said the Glen Oaks staff. ■

Celebrate the arrival of spring with the Glen Oaks family! On Saturday, May 20, Glen Oaks welcomes the warm weather with a Spring Festival. Activities start at 10:30am and continue late in the afternoon, and there's something for all ages! Come along for face painting, a scavenger hunt, and carnival games! Calling All Poets!

It's time for Queens Library's 2nd Annual Summer Poetry Contest!

Last year, over 300 poets from all over New York State sent us poems based on the theme of our Summer Reading program. The winning poems were published in Queens Library Magazine, and we invited our poets to read their work at a special ceremony at Flushing Library in November.

This summer, we welcome you to submit an original poem based on the 2017 Summer Reading theme of "Build a Better World." There's no limit to your creativity, but please keep it under 250 words.

Entries will be grouped into four categories: authors in Grades 4-5; Grades 6-8; Grades 9-12; and Post High School/Adult. One winner and three honorable mentions will be chosen in each group. Once again, the four winning poems will be published in Queens Library Magazine, and all winners and honorable mentions will have the opportunity to read their poems at an award ceremony this fall.

Poems will be accepted online and by mail between June 8 and July 31, 2017. Good luck to all our summer authors! To learn more about the 2017 Summer Poetry Contest and submit your poems, visit queenslib.org/poetrycontest2017. ■

Fourth-grade winner Jenabelle Daska with Queens Library President and CEO Dennis M. Walcott

Kacper Jarecki

Kacper Jarecki A One-Of-A-Kind Librarian

Kacper Jarecki is one of Queens Library's most enthusiastic employees, and brings his upbeat energy to his position as library manager of South Hollis. Born in Poland, Kacper grew up in Brooklyn and received his BA from Brooklyn College and his MLS from Queens College. Kacper worked at our Windsor Park, Long Island City, and Seaside libraries before arriving at South Hollis, where he has created special events like a Thanksgiving Dinner for homeless veterans and a Valentine's Day Celebration where children in South Hollis STACKS afterschool program give special speeches about adults who have made a difference in their lives.

Kacper talked to Queens Library Magazine recently about his career, the South Hollis community, and more, and he did so in his own unique way!

How did you arrive at Queens Library?

On my motorcycle? When I graduated school, it was February 2007. I was looking for a job for months! So when Queens Library offered me one that August, I was like, "Cool, dude." I'm grateful to Nick Buron and Alicia Wiltshire, who decided to take a chance on me. I love the library for letting me grow. Queens Library gave me my first full-time job, with benefits and opportunities for promotion. It was never my intention to work at a public library, and I wound up at one of the busiest ones in Queens—South Hollis!

Did you always want to become a librarian?

I wanted to be a lot of things. Mostly, I wanted to be an astronaut. Growing up, I loved watching Star Trek: The Next Generation. My favorite character was Data! Being an immigrant, and also being the child of artists, I always felt I was a little different. So I really liked Data, an android, because he was on the outside, trying to fit in, and he had a pet cat. I love cats! From Star Trek, I learned to be open to diversity. I'm just here trying to help people be the best possible version of themselves. If kids have a lot of energy, let them play at our ping pong table; if adults like to talk about "back in the day," let them get involved with the Queens Memory Project. Basically, the library helps connect humans, just like Star Trek, and as a library manager, I think of myself as a starship captain, and I want to "boldly go where no library has gone before."

How have you enjoyed your time at South Hollis? What programs have you developed during your time there that you would like people to know about?

I love South Hollis. There are so many kids here, who spend so much time at the library! We also have daily chess and a lot of special programs, like Eric the Reptile Guy and a lightsaber workshop. It's very exciting, because we have the flexibility to try and experiment with a lot of different activities. The library is a dynamic place that keeps changing with the times. We've hosted countless birthday parties. Next week is Lorenzo's; he is wheelchair-bound but he loves music and dancing! We have a Japanese-language club, and I actually have a Japanese instructor who teaches the class on Skype! Bingo is becoming popular, and our whole staff gets involved!

Are there any challenges that you have had during your time at South Hollis, and how have you approached them?

First of all, we have an excellent, All-Star, caring staff. I think the most important thing when you're dealing with customers is to make a genuine effort to like them and bring out their best. People can sense if you don't like them and it becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. When I started at South Hollis, it took time for me to develop a relationship with the kids and teens. I try to greet everyone, and I'm just always around. Everyone knows me, and we as a staff try to make the library as inviting and pleasant as we can for everyone. With the support of the whole staff, including our STACKS leader, the kids put on amazing performances every couple of months. This sends a strong message to the parents and to the neighborhood that the library is an empowering place where we encourage everyone to shine. We have a Friends Group, and we urge everyone to get involved. Thanks to our Friends Group, we were able to participate in the Haitian Arts Festival, which was a multi-library collaboration.

What do you think is the best thing about Queens Library?

I believe the library is possibly the ultimate altruistic organization we have in society. The library services everyone who walks through the door, from new-born babies to veterans and senior citizens. People who come to the library have an improved standard of living because they get access to all the free stuff it provides, with the added benefit of real-life friendly human contact with the staff and each other. I remember one veteran telling me that he feels sad when the library closes for the day, because this is where he goes to hang out and socialize. When the library is closed, it's like a part of his family is gone. Queens Library is unique because it has such a diverse customer base. We work with so many types of people, from all different backgrounds. We help create a dialogue between people. This is not to be underestimated.

If you could say anything to our customers and the people of Queens about Queens Library, what would it be?

One life lesson I've learned from Queens Library is that the more you give, the more you get. If you're a customer, I recommend signing up as a volunteer, or you should inquire about joining (or starting) the Friends Group at your local library. The library is only as good as the people who are involved, so be involved! Even if you're shy or timid, the library is a non-judgmental place where you can be yourself and share your unique talents and stories with other people. The library is a place where everyone can grow and experiment and learn. Try to be more engaged with your library—because you'll be in a position to help a lot of people, but also because of all the fun and new things you'll be able to experience!! ■

Launching the Teen Podcast!

Queens Library's Teen Podcast Workshop has had excellent results, with the official launch happening not just once, but twice. Two launch parties took place: one at Central on Thursday, March 23, and the other at Queens Library for Teens at Far Rockaway on Thursday, March 30.

Participating students between the ages of 12 and 19 reaped the rewards of their hard work, which saw them create their own podcast after an eight-week course. Each workshop covered a different topic, including audio editing, how to source an interesting story or topic, and podcast presentation skills. The students were led by instructors Sharon Cox, Assistant Director of the CLDC and Teen Center at Central; Chris Neuner, Radio Specialist; Ashley Allen, Customer Service Specialist; and Tara Brady, Young Adult Library at Central, and Brandon Jeffries, Teen Center Coordinator; and Gary Hawkins, Youth Counselor at the Queens Library for Teens, all of whom brought their expertise to the workshops every week.

The launches kicked off with an informational talk by the student radio team, with snacks and pizza on hand to satisfy any rumbling stomachs! Students then received certificates acknowledging their hard work, completion of the course, and successful creation of a podcast. The podcasts were played to the audience and a special guest Q & A with hip-hop pioneer DJ Chuck Chillout rounded out the evenings. Congratulations to the finishers—and great work on your final product!

This program was made possible by a grant from the Department of Youth and Community Development. ■

Flushing Children's Room Reopens

The Flushing Children's Room is back and it's better than ever!

At 1pm on Tuesday, April 4, the Flushing Children's Room reopened to the public. The official ribbon-cutting ceremony took place on Thursday, April 6, and the new and improved space has quickly become a go-to place for neighborhood families. Thanks to the Integrated Design Group, the newly renovated Children's Room is now 5,880 square feet, which is an increase of 900 square feet from the original. It now includes an Early Learning Center, program room, and even an interactive Lego wall where children can get creative! The renovation has also resulted in a new, curved book feature wall in the Adult area and touch-screen catalogs. Plus, the new Early Learning Center, designed by Architecture is Fun, features an expanded collection as well as a puppet theater, playhouse, and LED-illuminated bench. If you haven't seen it yet, make sure to stop by!

On a particularly gloomy day in April, one customer made sure to tell staff just how welcome the new facility made them feel. "It is so gloomy outside today. When I come in here, I feel so good!"

Thank you to the New York State Assembly Queens Delegation and the New York State Education Department for providing funding to complete this project. ■

Flushing Children's Room

The new space

As an incubator for aspiring Queens-based food professionals, Jamaica FEASTS addressed everything that participants need to know about running a food-based business, starting from writing a business plan and going through laws and licensing, marketing and social media, menu planning, budgeting, food safety, customer service, and plenty more. In the final session of the course, participants prepared brief presentations about their fledgling businesses—based on the lessons they'd learned in previous classes.

The students, who went through a rigorous selection process, all have varied backgrounds in the food industry. From a Spanish-inspired food truck and a vegan-focused private chef to artisanal ice cream, Caribbean catering, and Korean condiments, the first cohort demonstrated the diverse population—and tastes!—of Queens. Students were also in different stages of the entrepreneurship process as the course progressed, with some starting to secure permits for food trailers, and others acquiring commercial spaces or formally registering their business names.

“Jamaica FEASTS is an exciting program because it is comprehensive and the first of its kind in Queens. Our program is three-pronged and includes in-class learning, commercial kitchen access, as well as retail space. Our participants are able to launch and build their brand at very low risk and cost while they work toward their ultimate goals,” said Morgan Earle, the Queens Library’s Jamaica FEASTS Manager. We’re excited to see how the first cohort goes now that the course is done—because if there’s one thing Queens knows, it’s great food!

For information about future Jamaica FEASTS courses, visit: queenslib.org/jamaicafeasts. ■

Jamaica FEASTS Gets Cooking!

Starting in January, Queens Library hosted its first-ever session of Jamaica Food Entrepreneurship and Services Training Space (FEASTS). The debut cohort of the Jamaica FEASTS program wrapped up at the end of April, after twelve weeks of learning the operational quirks of starting and running their own food businesses.

An important part of the Creative Aging program is sequential education, which allows a long-term approach to the learning opportunities Queens Library offers. Each program will be led by an experienced teaching artist, and aims to provide a safe, fun environment for socializing, lifelong learning and, ultimately, enhance the participants' quality of life. The Creative Aging series increases engagement in community-based activities, and allows teaching artists to foster creative development in older learners.

Creative Aging programs take place at Bay Terrace, Cambria Heights, Forest Hills, Fresh Meadows, Glen Oaks, Laurelton, Richmond Hill, Rochdale Village, and Sunnyside community libraries. Programs include sculpture, mask-making, watercolors, quilting, and art history. For more information about dates and class topics, visit queenslibrary.org.

The Creative Aging series is made possible with funding from the New York State Council on the Arts. ■

Creative Aging Comes to Queens

Queens Library is proud to offer Creative Aging, a program created for older adults with creative interests. Creative Aging is run by Madlyn Schneider, who also coordinates Mail-A-Book and teleconference programs, and who hopes to introduce exciting new programming to older Queens Library patrons. "Our goal is to also help older adults have a renewed relationship with their library and to make their library a destination for learning and socialization," said Madlyn of the Creative Aging program.

Say hello to the new calendar brochures!

By now, you might have spotted brightly-colored brochures at your local community library. These are the new Queens Library calendar brochures, which contain everything you need to know about upcoming programs each month. Queens Library is launching these new brochures to reduce paper waste from the current flyers and brochures, which will be phased out in the coming months, as well as to provide our customers with an easier way to know all the programs that are taking place at their local community library.

Larger libraries with many children's programs will also have a "Youth" brochure. These libraries are Central, Flushing, and Broadway. Each brochure will also have a key on the inside cover, where you can determine what rooms programs are held in, what languages they will be in, and any other important information. Large programs will appear on the back and inside flap panels. Brochures will also be available in Spanish and Mandarin Chinese at select locations.

Below, you'll see a diagram of the new calendar brochure layout to make the transition as seamless as possible. ■

The Digital Q mobile site!

Read Great Magazines Outside the Library!

You may know about all the great services and materials available to you at your community library...but what about what's available when you're not at the library?

Did you know that you can access magazines like The New Yorker, National Geographic, Martha Stewart Living, GQ, Rolling Stone, and more from anywhere, including your next hospital visit?

Queens Library's Digital-Q is a smart, simple way to access digital content from the Library. With Digital-Q, you can download or view more than 200 e-magazine titles. You can use Digital-Q on your smartphone, tablet, desktop, or laptop.

At NYC Health + Hospitals Queens, located in Jamaica, Digital-Q is easily accessible to devices with access to the internet through either a personal data plan or the hospital's guest Wi-Fi. You can download and read magazines while you wait to see a doctor, or during your extended stay at the hospital.

And the best part? It's all free. All you need is your library card—and if you don't have one, you can even create an account when you first use Digital-Q.

Digital-Q is part of Queens Library's ongoing campaign of partnerships that increase access to our digital services—including e-books, audio books, music, and movies—and bring the best of the Library to you, even when you can't physically visit one of our community libraries.

To get free e-magazines anywhere you can find a digital connection, just visit digitalq.nyc. ■

Remembering Helen Marshall

Queens Library lost an important member of its family when Helen M. Marshall, who served Queens as borough president from 2002 to 2013, died on March 2 at the age of 87.

Helen Marshall

Ms. Marshall was elected as Queens Borough President in November 2001, becoming the second woman and the first African American to hold that position. She made the promotion of Queens as a world-class tourist destination one of her priorities; a slogan she used was “Visit Queens and see the world.” She served three terms as borough president; before that, she served on the New York City Council for 10 years and in the State Assembly for eight. She also served her community before entering politics as a community activist in East Elmhurst, advocating for job training programs and economic development.

Marshall was the first director of the Langston Hughes Community Library and Cultural Center, which she and other residents of Corona and East Elmhurst conceived and formed in 1969. She remained a tireless champion of Queens Library. A 2013 report from the Center for an Urban Future revealed that, as borough president, Marshall had allocated more money for library projects in the previous decade than the other four NYC borough presidents had combined. She was especially proud of the Helen Marshall Children’s Library Discovery Center at Central Library in Jamaica, a project for which she secured the primary funding. “Helen always said it combined her three favorite things under one roof: children, libraries, and science,” said Alexandra Rosa, Helen Marshall’s former Chief of Staff.

“Queens Library would not be the world-class library system it is today without Helen,” said Queens Library President and CEO Dennis M. Walcott. “She believed in libraries as places where communities are empowered and inspired, where children can nurture a love of learning and discovery, and where adults can gain the skills they need to adapt to a changing workforce. Her passion for libraries drove her to secure a record amount of capital funding to upgrade, expand, or improve many of the 62 libraries throughout our system and to continue to open new ones. Helen was a personal inspiration; her advocacy on behalf of children was exemplary, and she represented Queens with dignity. Her leadership and vision will be felt in our libraries and beyond for generations, and we will be forever grateful to her.” ■

Save the Date for our Annual Gala!

The Queens Library Foundation's 2017 Annual Gala will take place on Tuesday, October 17, at the Queens Museum.

Nearly 300 supporters of the Library attended last year's Gala to pay tribute to our special honorees and the Library's mission and customers.

This year's honorees include Patricia E. Harris, the Chief Executive Officer of Bloomberg Philanthropies; Jeffrey H. Barker, New York City Market President of Bank of America; and Lester W. Young, Jr., Ed.D., Regent At Large at The University of the State of New York.

The Gala is just one of our many partnerships with the Queens Museum, including a future circulating branch of Queens Library, currently under construction, which will be located on the ground floor of the Museum!

Information about purchasing tickets and sponsorships will be available in the coming months; watch for updates in Queens Library Magazine and on the Queens Library website. We hope you will join us in October! ■

New Staff Changes at Queens Library

Queens Library is happy to announce the arrival of William Goldband as the Library's new Vice President of Information Technology. In this role, Bill will be responsible for leading the strategic technology direction for Queens Library and ensuring robust and reliable IT service and support for all of our staff and customers.

Bill joins us from the New York City Department of Education, where he was the IT Chief Administrator and Deputy Executive Director of Applications and Infrastructure. Prior to joining the Department of Education, Bill was the Program Director for Broadridge Financial Services, a $3 billion financial services firm. Bill has also served in other senior IT management roles at Astoria Federal Savings, New York Life Insurance, and Thomson McKinnon Brokerage. He has a Bachelor of Science degree in Information Systems Management, which he obtained at the State University of New York at Buffalo.

"I'm very excited to be joining the Queens Library; there are so many special services and interesting programs that are provided for our patrons and staff," said Bill. "I look forward to working with everyone to enhance and expand the use of technology across our library communities and support teams."

We're also happy to announce that Sung Mo Kim has become the new General Counsel of Queens Library. He succeeds Lewis Finkelman, who is now the Library's Chief Operating Officer. As General Counsel, Sung oversees all of the Library's legal matters, including contracts, litigation, policy, and labor relations.

Sung joined Queens Library in October 2015 as our Associate General Counsel. He has an extensive background in New York City government, having served previously as Deputy General Counsel for the New York City Council and for the New York City Conflicts of Interest Board. A lifelong resident of Queens, Sung has a JD and an LLM in Criminal Law from the State University of New York at Buffalo Law School and holds a BS in Accounting from the State University of New York College at Geneseo.

"I'm very honored to accept this new role at Queens Library," said Sung, "and I'm grateful to continue supporting our staff and our organization in all the good work that we do for the people of Queens."

Welcome aboard, Bill, and congratulations, Sung! ■
