You spoke, and the Mayor and the New York City Council listened! Thanks to your efforts on behalf of New York City’s libraries, we will receive $43 million citywide in additional funding for 2016.

This investment will allow us to bring six days of service to every community library in Queens. We look forward to bringing you more hours of service, more library staff to support you, more books and more programs and events!

The new City Budget also includes a capital funding allocation of more than $300 million to the City’s libraries over the next 10 years, which will go toward improving and enhancing our library facilities.

Thank you again to Mayor Bill de Blasio, Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito, Finance Committee Chair Julissa Ferreras, Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer, outgoing Libraries Sub-Committee Chair Costa Constantinides, incoming Library chair Andy King, and the entire City Council for investing in our City’s libraries. We are also very thankful for Borough President Melinda Katz’s generous investment of $14.2 million in capital funds for Queens libraries.

And, of course, thank you—for attending our advocacy rallies, writing to your elected officials and providing such tremendous support. We couldn’t have done it without you!

I hope you will enjoy all the great things happening at Queens Library—and enjoy this issue of Queens Library Magazine!

What’s Happening Now at Queens Library?

Kickoff to Kindergarten and Family Places

Our Kickoff to Kindergarten eight-week program, which teaches parents and caregivers how to nurture the skills that their children will need to be successful before they start kindergarten, starts in late September at eight library locations, with more coming this fall! And you can visit a Family Place—a special area with toys, books and programs specifically designed for children age 5 and under—at five of our community libraries, including the newly reopened Peninsula library! Visit queenslibrary.org for more information.

Hispanic Heritage at Langston Hughes!

September 15–October 15 is National Hispanic Heritage Month, and we will be celebrating with an all-day program of events at Langston Hughes Community Library in Corona—including cooking demonstrations, and performances by Guillermo and Gabriel Ariza and by David Cedeño’s Orchestra. It’s on Saturday, September 19, from 11:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Call 718-651-1100 to learn more.

StartUP! Your Business Plan

The Queens Economic Development Corporation’s annual StartUP! Competition begins in September. StartUP! helps new entrepreneurs gain the skills they need to help their businesses succeed, and Queens Library’s Job & Business Academy will provide resources and workshops at Central Library for everyone participating in this year’s competition. Visit our JBA webpage at queenslibrary.org/services/job-business-academy to find out more.

Library Renovations

Our community libraries at Elmhurst and Kew Gardens are still undergoing construction and are projected to reopen in early 2016. We thank you for your patience!

Makerspaces at Long Island City

Our summer Maker Camp at Long Island City was a huge success, so our LIC staff has decided to start Makerspace programs during the upcoming year, including Maker Thursdays for kids starting this September and a Maker Spot for older adults occurring later this fall. Contact the library at 718-592-5700 for a full schedule.

Bigger and Better at Rochdale Village

The newly expanded Adult Learning Center at Rochdale Village will have its grand reopening in late September. Be sure to visit the Rochdale Village ALC to learn more about the services available there and to tour the new space, which has a much larger classroom and a beautiful reading garden! Call 718-723-4440 for more details.
Welcome Back, Peninsula Library!

We’re proud to announce that Queens Library at Peninsula has re-opened!

Hurricane Sandy filled Peninsula Library with more than four feet of floodwater, and the damage required major reconstruction and replacement of all the library’s contents. A library trailer has served the community since then.

The rebuilt library has entirely new and updated print and non-print library collections, eight public computers and “wired” reading tables in the adult reading room.

We’ve also expanded Peninsula’s Adult Learning Center, which now has a classroom, an open group tutoring area and its own computers and meeting room.

Our younger customers will enjoy a teen area with six computers, gaming and reading lounges and group work areas, and a larger children’s area with an early childhood alcove, six computer workstations and “Family Place” enhanced programming.

In addition to new furniture and shelving, Peninsula now has a “beach and boardwalk” decor theme throughout the library, and—very important—resiliency features designed to help minimize damage in case of future weather events.

Now that the last of the libraries damaged by Hurricane Sandy has been restored, we’ve scheduled a week of events to celebrate its return.

On Tuesday, September 8, we will hold a kick-off ribbon-cutting with elected officials to formally reopen the library. Everyone is welcome to attend, especially the firefighters, first responders and other community members who played such critical roles in supporting the community during Hurricane Sandy and the continuing recovery in the Rockaways.

All week long, the library will offer special programs to introduce the community to its renovated library, including a week-long open house at the library’s Adult Learning Center.

These events and programs will culminate in our Day at the Beach celebration on Saturday, September 12, where community and civic groups will join us and the Friends of Peninsula Library for food, games, music and more!

“We saw how important libraries are to their communities during Hurricane Sandy,” said Queens Library Interim President and CEO Bridget Quinn-Carey. “We’re proud that Queens Library could help offer critical emergency services in the hardest-hit areas during the storm. The long-awaited re-opening of Peninsula is another step in the recovery process in the Rockaways, and we are pleased to restore full library services and programs to the community. We thank you for your patience and can’t wait to celebrate with you!”
We have a brand-new, free, after-school program, Stacks After School, which will provide a safe haven for grade-school kids to improve their social and academic skills and build on the learning that happens every day in school.

For those looking to improve their job skills, our Job & Business Academy offers several options for your professional education. Basic, intermediate and advanced computer classes are always available at several library locations. You can even learn HTML coding and how to create an app or a website using Treehouse, a great online tool that will help you learn tech skills at your own pace. For more information, visit queenslibrary.org/learn.

We also offer adult learners several ways to work toward their high school equivalency diploma and build the skills they need to reach their learning goals.

Here is some more information about Stacks After School and our adult literacy program.

Stacks After School

Every Queens Library location has homework help and enrichment activities every day after school. A new format for after-school programs will be available for students in grades 1-8 at 18 Queens Library locations starting this September, with potential new locations offering the program in the near future.

From 3:00-6:00 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, Stacks will provide a structured learning environment for students, with the first half of the program dedicated to homework help and the rest to fun learning activities focused on arts, crafts, science, games and more.

After their homework is done, students will have an opportunity to work on a research project based on what they’re learning in school. They will be asked an interesting question about a topic and will spend the rest of the week investigating it and creating presentations to share with their fellow program participants!

We’re also partnering with our friends at Asia Society to offer a Global Citizenship curriculum for our Stacks students, where they will learn how to communicate with people of different cultures and appreciate their customs. They’ll also enjoy an optional educational field trip to Asia Society’s headquarters in Manhattan.

Each Stacks location is designed to serve a small group of about 20 students, who will enroll with their parents’ permission. Check our website or visit or call your local Queens Library for more information and details on when and how to enroll.

While we’ll all miss the fun of summer, there’s a world of learning opportunities available for everyone this fall at Queens Library!

Enrich Your Love of Learning at Queens Library This Fall!
Thank you to Carnegie Corporation of New York, whose generous funding makes Stacks After School possible!

More Opportunities for Adult Learning

Queens Library has the largest library-run adult literacy program in the U.S., serving more than 3,000 students in our English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) classes and 1,500 students who are on the road to earning their high school equivalency (HSE) diplomas.

Adult learners can take classes at any of our seven library-based Adult Learning Centers (ALCs), where staff and volunteers lead small groups and classes focused on reading and writing, English conversation and HSE test preparation. We also offer structured ESOL classes at more than 25 community library locations throughout Queens.

Our Young Adult Literacy Program is also available at Queens Library locations in Jamaica, Long Island City and Far Rockaway. It’s an intensive program designed for youth (ages 16-24) who left school without the reading, writing and math skills necessary for pre-HSE classes.

Queens Library runs four Testing Assessment for Secondary Completion (TASC) centers where students can take the test that leads to an HSE diploma. (The TASC test has replaced the GED as the official HSE test in New York State.) And we’ll be adding a fifth testing site this fall! Students who need additional tutoring to succeed will get the help they need in free library workshops, conveniently scheduled.

For adult learners who want an alternate route to their high school diploma, the Adult Learning Center at Queens Library in Long Island City offers the National External Diploma Program (NEDP), which allows independent study and focuses on evaluating a portfolio of skills instead of formal testing.

All the hard work our adult learners do, including those in ESOL classes, is directed toward helping them achieve their own personal goals. Many are earning a high school diploma, and we applaud them. We had 140 men and women invited to walk in their caps and gowns at a graduation ceremony in May 2015 at Central Library!

“Our goal is to accommodate everyone who walks into our Adult Learning Centers and wants to continue their education,” said Diosdado Gica, Ed.D., Director of Learning and Literacy at Queens Library. “With so many locations, there are a lot of different class schedules available for students, who we know are often working multiple jobs and raising families. Our case managers and counselors are here to work with and support students in any way they can.”

Registration and pre-testing for the fall semester of ALC classes at Queens Library begins the week of September 14, and the 12-week semester starts the week of September 21. To learn more, visit queenslibrary.org/adultlearning.
Queens Library is proud to help many of these New Americans learn English as a Second Language. And we’re pleased to be able to help English speakers learn other languages, too. You’re never too old, and you can do it for free! All you need is a Queens Library card!

We provide access to more than 44 different databases for Queens Library customers to do research, read news articles and find other information in different languages. Our two language-learning databases, Rocket Languages and Transparent Language Online, are available on any library computer, and are also accessible on home computers and mobile devices.

Rocket Languages is an award-winning, online language-learning system that offers 62 hours of interactive instruction in 13 languages, including English for Spanish Speakers and American Sign Language. Customers can stream lessons from Rocket Languages or download them for easy access on all MP3 compatible devices.

Transparent Language Online provides an effective, fun and engaging experience for language learners of all levels. It makes lessons in more than 95 different languages available, including English for speakers of over 25 other languages! It combines flexible lessons, supplemental resources and dozens of learning activities and videos, and has its own dedicated app for iPhone and Android devices.

“Many people in Queens want to learn the languages that their neighbors are speaking,” said Fred J. Gitner, Assistant Director of Queens Library’s New Americans Program and International Relations. “Our language databases offer a fun, free and time-effective way for our customers to learn the basics of a new language at their own speed and expand their knowledge of other customs and cultures.”

And, of course, for people who prefer learning offline, we also provide access to great classes, books and audio CDs offering instruction in several languages. For example, as part of a grant from the Korean Education Center in New York, classes in Korean language and culture are offered frequently at McGoldrick Library. And we’re starting classes in Haitian Creole at Central Library this September!

To access our language learning databases, visit queenslibrary.org/services/learn-language.
Calling All Kids: You’re Never Too Young to Start with STEM!

During the next decade, the United States demand for scientists and engineers is expected to increase at four times the rate for all other occupations. But, according to a 2013 National Center for Educational Statistics report, the U.S. ranks 31st among 65 countries in teen math literacy and 24th in science literacy.

The need to start STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) learning—and interest in STEM—early in our kids’ lives is clear, and Queens Library continues to make early STEM learning a huge part of our educational activities.

This past June, we hosted a Spring Science Showcase with our partners at Time Warner Cable where everyone could view the STEM projects that kids and their families had worked on throughout the year. And at our Summer Reading kick-off, the New York Hall of Science, Queens Botanical Garden and PBS were among our community partners greeting children and their families.

All summer, at the very successful Maker Camp at our Long Island City location, young inventors and artists made wonderful projects that demonstrated basic science and engineering principles. Our LEAP into Science partnership with The Franklin Institute in Philadelphia provided STEM activities at the Children’s Library Discovery Center (CLDC) at Central Library. And our Early Learning Educators traveled to day care and Head Start centers throughout Queens to bring science learning to children, in a special program sponsored by the City’s First Readers initiative.

Great STEM activities like our weekly Saturday Science Lab and Science Tuesdays programs for young children will continue at CLDC. And don’t miss our 5th Annual Discovery Day Street Fair on Saturday, September 12 outside Central Library, where we will have STEM fun provided by ArchForKids, Vinny Voltage and our own Discovery Team.

The Discovery Team—a group of young people trained by us, the New York Hall of Science, the Museum of Natural History and other science organizations—is an important part of Queens Library. Team members conduct “pop-up science activities” on a daily basis and run all the science events at CLDC. The Discovery Team also travels to our community libraries as they are needed, making sure that science learning at Queens Library is always hands-on and interactive, and that the natural curiosity of kids is encouraged and engaged!

“We always want our community libraries to design and develop more science activities for children and their families,” said Daniel Nkansah, Coordinator of Children’s Services at Queens Library. “Our Children’s Librarians even visited the Museum of Natural History to train and get more ideas for programming. Sixty-five percent of scientists with advanced degrees say their interest in science started before middle school. The earlier kids start STEM, the more interested they become.”

Whether you’re a fan of opera, classical music, show tunes, jazz, folk music or world rhythms, programs you won’t want to miss are coming to your community library from Lincoln Center Local now and through the end of the year!

Queens Library Celebrates Asian Culture

We’ve partnered with Asia Society to bring new and interesting programming to Queens Library at Flushing this fall.

Asia Society is dedicated to promoting mutual understanding and strengthening relationships among the people, leaders and institutions of Asia and the United States.

These programs will introduce new aspects of Asia to Queens Library’s customers and offer them more opportunities to share and celebrate Asian culture.

On September 22, Michael Zhao, the founder of the interactive website China Air Daily, will speak to us about air pollution and environmental issues in China. And in October, Adriana Proser, Asia Society’s Senior Curator for Traditional Asian Art, will provide an exclusive preview of their fall exhibit, “Philippine Gold.” Both programs will be followed by a question-and-answer session.

To learn more about these programs, please visit queenslibrary.org/events.
Serving the 60+ Set
Fun and Enrichment for Older Adults

According to the NYC Department for the Aging, New York City’s older adult population includes 1.4 million people over the age of 60. As increasing numbers of baby-boom New Yorkers cross that age threshold in better health than previous generations, the population of people 60 and older is projected to increase to 1.84 million by 2030. Over the last 10 years, New York City has also seen increases in the number of seniors who are poor, who are people of color and/or immigrants, and who are living alone.

Older adults in all these categories want to stay as active and socially and intellectually engaged as possible, especially when they are retired. Queens Library has always provided programs for seniors, but now more than ever, the library offers great ways for older adults to socialize, have fun and stay mentally and physically active, whether or not they can actually visit the library.

"Anyone at home who cannot get to a library should be able to get everything that a person gets when they walk into a library—programming, materials, information, socialization, learning opportunities, everything," said Madlyn Schneider, who runs Queens Library’s award-winning Older Adult/Mail-a-Book Services program.

Those who can get to a Queens Library location can take part in events like AARP-affiliated tax help and defensive driving courses; attend introductory courses on how to use computers, the Internet and email; and receive one-on-one help with operating a mobile device or tablet—all in programs geared especially to older adults. Queens Library’s Senior Theater Acting Repertory gathers older adults together to put on dramatic works and experience, or re-experience, the thrill of the stage.

Seniors also need to keep tabs on their health, of course. For that, Queens Library offers StayWell exercise, meditation and health-education programs for adults 60 and older and regular Shape Up NYC programs for adults of all ages, providing classes in yoga, Pilates, Zumba and other great ways to keep their minds sharp and bodies strong.

We’re also addressing the need expressed by older adults to continue learning and growing. In partnership with Lifetime Arts’ “The Creative Aging Public Libraries Project,” Queens Library is offering multi-session courses with professional teaching artists in which seniors can learn more about drawing, photography, memoir writing and more.

But if you or someone you love can’t leave your home, Queens Library can come to you. We offer library services for seniors and adults of all ages who are homebound through Mail-a-Book. Last year, we circulated more than 60,000 free items through the US Postal Service. Books in large and regular print, audiobooks, eBooks and eReaders, movies, music and games are all available to loan.

Through Mail-a-Book and other library programming “without walls,” homebound customers have found a vital lifeline to the outside world. Queens Library offers a full calendar of virtual programs through teleconference and Skype, including book and topical discussion groups, bingo, concerts, poetry and art history workshops and informal chats.

“We’ve had many seminars on different aspects of Queens and have had elected officials speak to us, including our Borough President,” said Mail-a-Book customer Bonnie Sue Pokorny, who also moderates book and short-story discussion groups. “We have health seminars over the phone with health care providers, which are informative and educational. The community has become more aware of us, and we are no longer the ‘invisible’ population.”

You can learn more about these services at queenslibrary.org/services/older-adults.
Thank You to Our Friends at Douglaston!

On a beautiful June afternoon at the Douglaston Club, the Friends of Douglaston/Little Neck Library raised more than $25,000 for books and other resources! This funding will provide more than 1,500 books for their library.

Attendees chatted over drinks and hors d’oeuvres, enjoyed live music and participated in a raffle and silent auction, which featured restaurant dinners, tickets to sporting events and a painting by a local artist.

The Chairman of the Library’s Board of Trustees, Carl Koerner, Esq., along with Interim President and CEO Bridget Quinn-Carey and Queens Library Foundation President Vincent Arcuri, Jr., warmly thanked and congratulated those Help Raise 1,000 New Voices!

Queens Library is the largest provider of free English instruction for adult Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) in Queens. These programs are funded primarily through public grants and other city and state funds.

Last year, we helped raise the voices of more than 4,000 non-English speaking Queens residents at our Adult Learning Centers. Still, the demand for our ESOL classes has never been greater—we turned away more than 1,000 potential students. That’s why we’ve made raising support for ESOL the main focus of this year’s Fundraising Gala.

We hope you will join us this December at Mulan Restaurant, located in the heart of Flushing at 136-17 39th Avenue. This beautiful restaurant is a symbol of Queens’ global diversity, just like Queens Library at Flushing, the city’s most visited library.

We hope to raise enough funds to teach ESOL to 1,000 more students next year, and to showcase the programs and services that we provide to our city’s new Americans.

For more information about our Fundraising Gala, please visit the Foundation’s website at foundation.queenslibrary.org. As always, we thank you for your support.
Planned giving, sometimes also referred to as gift planning, deferred giving or estate planning, can enable philanthropic individuals to make larger gifts than they could make from their current income.

One difference between a regular donation and a planned gift is that the planned gift takes place in the future and requires more preparation. A popular method of supporting nonprofit organizations is to make a deferred gift or bequest at some future date.

Donors can support their favorite causes by designating a nonprofit or charity as a beneficiary of cash, stocks, real estate, life insurance policies, IRAs, pension funds, and other assets in their wills. There are also a number of more complex financial gift instruments which may meet the donor's needs, such as a living trust, charitable trust, or annuities that enable the donor to receive benefits during his or her lifetime.

Queens Library Foundation partners with the Queens County Bar Association to present Elder Law Seminars which are free to the public. Legal experts in elder law provide attendees with important facts on a variety of issues, such as health care proxies, long term care, estate planning and bequests, so that they can learn more information that will help them choose the charitable giving option that works best for them.

The Play’s the Thing

See Shakespeare Performed at Queens Library!

William Shakespeare is considered history’s greatest playwright—and his plays are, of course, at their best when performed onstage.

Now, the play’s the thing at Queens Library! We’re proud to announce that the TITAN Theatre Company will team with us to present “Shakespeare in Queens.”

Every month, actors from TITAN will present a free dramatic reading of a Shakespeare play at one of our community libraries. This is an ambitious project—one that will take TITAN three years to complete, since Shakespeare wrote 37 plays!

TITAN Theatre Company was created to breathe new life and clarity into classical works of theater through challenging, adventurous and ensemble-driven productions.

TITAN began performing in 2009 in a restaurant in Long Island City. Since then, their work has been embraced by audiences from all walks of life, and TITAN Theatre Company is a proud contributing member of the new, exciting and innovative Queens theater scene.

The performances will take place every first Monday of the month at 5:30 p.m., starting with:

- Much Ado About Nothing on October 5 at Queens Library at Forest Hills, 108-19 71st Avenue
- Othello on November 2 at Central Library, 89-11 Merrick Boulevard, Jamaica
- The Merchant of Venice on December 7 at Queens Library at Flushing, 41-17 Main Street
- Antony and Cleopatra on January 4, 2016 at Queens Library at Woodside, 54-22 Skillman Avenue

TITAN will also hold “Talking Shakespeare” discussions at Flushing community library, where they will answer your questions about the plays. The first discussion will be held on Monday, January 11, 2016.

For a full list of upcoming performances, visit queenslibrary.org/shakespeare or TITANtheatrecompany.com.
Visitors to Central Library in Jamaica have long enjoyed one of the most entertaining displays of Queens’ diversity—the enormously popular Sunday Concerts @ Central series, which for almost 30 years has celebrated the music of different cultures from around the world. Every month, people of all ages and backgrounds join us for concerts in a rich variety of musical genres and styles, featuring emerging artists and seasoned professionals. This year alone has featured American jazz harp (Brandee Younger), Latin fusion from Mexico (the Villalobos Brothers), a Japanese drum ensemble (Soh Daiko), Afro-Brazilian dance (Ologundé) and Bengali folk music (Wahid and Nasreen Azad).

These free performances are “edutainment” at its best, where attendees can broaden their cultural knowledge and see traditional music and songs performed in their original languages, often with authentic instruments and dress.

At Sunday Concerts @ Central, artists and audience members alike share their pride and speak about their cultures in a community setting; and library materials, books and CDs relating to the performance are displayed to help enhance our customers’ educational experience. The next Sunday Concerts @ Central performance takes place on October 4, with the band Queens Court, featuring Keisha St. Joan and an all-star lineup of musicians. We hope to see you there!

What’s Your Favorite Scary Story?

Halloween is on its way, and we asked our librarians to share some favorite terrifying tales from books, movies, children’s literature and more!

“I manage the DVD collection at Central Library, and there is one movie we have that I find very scary—The Collector, with Terence Stamp and Samantha Eggar, based on the novel by John Fowles. There’s no bloodshed, no big teeth and no imaginary monsters; what’s terrifying about it is that it could easily happen in real life.”
—Marina Rudko, Librarian, Central Library

“One of my favorites is Paul Galdone’s version of The Teeny-Tiny Woman. I love it because it’s for young kids and a little scary, but not enough to really frighten them. It’s also funny and has a surprise ending, and it’s great to read aloud. I love the illustrations in this version, too!”
—Mary Blieka, Children’s Librarian, Queens Library at Flushing

“Stephen King wrote two short stories, ‘The Raft’ and ‘The Mist,’ which both appear in his book Skeleton Crew. Both explore the horror of helplessness. In the first story, some teenagers are stuck in the middle of a lake, cut off from shore by something trying to kill them. In the second, a group of townspeople are trapped in a supermarket, surrounded by the mist—and what’s in it—and unable to venture out. I can’t imagine anything worse than being in a situation where there is no hope for escape.”
—Daniel Thom, Senior Librarian, Information Access Services, Central Library

“I have a great young-adult pick: Welcome to the Dark House by Lauri Stolarz. Imagine an ‘80s slasher movie taking place on the set of The Real World, and you’ve got some great old-school horror with a reality show twist. For six contestants, it’s the chance of a lifetime: to meet and possibly be in their favorite director’s next horror movie. Shortly after settling in, the group starts experiencing strange things, including one member going missing, cryptic messages and bloodstains. But is it all part of the movie?”
—Rosemary Kiladitis, Children’s Librarian, Queens Library at Pomonok

“I recall reading Edgar Allan Poe’s The Masque of the Red Death when I was fifteen. It was a riveting read. It’s short and concise, with nightmarish imagery. The story is quite frightening because it mixes the vivid images of the splendor of the Prince’s court with the hideous specter of the Red Death. It examines the fear of illness and death, which even the most privileged people in the kingdom are at a loss to cope with. What a haunting story!”
—Daniel Zaleski, Senior Librarian, Programming and Outreach, Central Library

PRESCHOOL PROGRAMS
Queens Library regularly offers free programs for children up to age 5. Each child must be accompanied by a parent or other adult caregiver. For specifics regarding ages, dates and times, see listings in the “Children” section of this guide and speak directly to the Children’s Librarian at the location of that program. All programs are free; however, some require preregistration or are on a first-come, first-served basis. Please check back monthly for updated program information.

MOTHER GOOSE TIME – This interactive program for infants features nursery rhymes, fingerplays and songs.

TODDLER TIME – These are carefully designed, age-appropriate programs of stories, rhymes, songs and fingerplays that encourage literacy development in toddlers and the youngest preschoolers.

PICTURE BOOK TIME – These programs incorporate stories with a variety of other activities (songs, rhymes, crafts, circle time) and are designed to give preschoolers important skills to encourage later success, while providing an early window into the pleasures of literacy.
